Christian Pilgrims Pass Scars of War on Path to Crucifixion

JERUSALEM, April 7—(AP)—Thousands of Christian pilgrims today file past jagged reminders of recent war to observe the passion of the Prince of Peace on the route he took to his crucifixion.

Through barbed wire entanglements, past dragon-tooth tank traps and ancient walls scarred by hundreds of battles, pilgrims make their Good Friday march to the sacred Via Dolorosa in the old city which is now held by the Arabs of the Kingdom of Hashemite Jordan.

Thousands of pilgrims have come from all parts of the world. Some entered the ancient city from New Jerusalem, held by the Jews as part of their state of Israel, and some came from Arab-held Palestine and Jordan.

Roman Catholics, eastern Orthodox followers and Protestants alike celebrate Holy Week at the same time this year.

Many of the pilgrims, unable to find accommodations inside the noisy, crowded old city, spent the night in Bethlehem, at Jericho on the Dead Sea and in villages in the Judean hills.

Roman Catholics are to celebrate the mass of the pre-sanctified in the Chapel of Calvary at the site where Jesus Christ is said to have been nailed to the cross.

Route Almost Unchanged through Centuries

A burial procession this evening will wind through the dark and narrow streets of the Via Dolorosa, which now teems with Arab shops and a life almost unchanged through the centuries.

The 14 original "stations of the cross" are on this stone-walled street. Marked by shrines are the spots, as described in the New Testament, where Jesus paused on his way to Calvary and where he later was buried before the resurrection.

The procession ends at the Church of the Holy Sepulchre, in the underground crypts of which is Christ's tomb. The church, near the northern wall of the old city, has been fully repaired following last winter's fire which damaged its cupola.

Sermons will be given in different languages on Christ's last words. Then an effigy of the crucified Jesus will be taken down from the cross, wrapped in a shroud, anointed, sprayed with incense before the stone of unction and finally carried to the tomb.

Other Good Friday observances, meanwhile, are going on in the new part of Jerusalem—across the wide no-man's-land of truce which separates the Jewish and Arab territories.

Mercy Killer Found Guilty; Shown Mercy

Maximum Penalty Under Conviction 12 Years in Prison

ALLENTOWN, Pa., April 7—(AP)—Harold Mohr was found guilty today of voluntary manslaughter in the mercy-killing of his cancer-ravaged brother.

The jury of eight men and four women recommended mercy. Judge James F. Henninger said yesterday such a recommendation is not mandatory on the court. Maximum term for voluntary manslaughter is 12 years in prison.

Mohr stood to hear the sentence with no visible display of emotion. He stared, dully, at the floor.

The verdict was returned at 9:55 A. M., Eastern Standard Time, an hour and 25 minutes after the jury resumed deliberations. Five hours of study yesterday failed to bring forth a verdict.

Choice of 4 Verdicts

The jurors had a choice of four verdicts: first or second degree murder, voluntary manslaughter or acquittal.

Defense Counsel Harry C. Creveling promptly made an oral motion for a new trial. He must file a written petition by Monday. (Please turn to Page Two)

Walter Huston Dies On 66th Birthday

HOLLYWOOD, April 7—(AP)—Walter Huston, one of the nation's most eminent stage and screen actors, died today.

He was stricken at his hotel suite late yesterday, just before a surprise 66th birthday party planned for him by his son, Director John Huston, and others at Romanoff's Cafe.

He was unable to go to the party but celebrated his birthday at the hotel in Beverly Hills with Spencer Tracy, John Huston and other friends.

Huston's physician, Dr. Verne Mason, said the ailment apparently was kidney trouble or a blood clot.

Church Marriages Only, Is New Rule

BOSTON, April 7—(AP)—All Catholic marriages in the Boston Archdiocese must be celebrated in a church beginning next Monday.

Achbishop Richard J. Cushing laid down the rule last night. He said "Weddings have become mere social occasions (and) men and women of our day need to be reminded of the religious character of the marriage contract."

He gave instructions that "all marriages celebrated by priests in the Archdiocese of Boston take place in the proper church and not in a private home, rectory or even sacristy of the church."

Texas Girl Cuts Teeth On Rattlesnake's Tail

TURKEY, Texas, April 7—(AP)—Sandra Haynes, 2, liked her new teething ring—a live, rattlesnake, and remarkably agreeable rattlesnake.

Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Haynes, found her sitting in the yard, the snake in her hand and the tail in her mouth.

Horror-stricken, the Hayneses took Sandra to a doctor, who could find no fang marks or other injury.

Missing Co-ed Is Back Home

HARRISBURG, Pa., April 7—(AP)—A Bryn Mawr College junior, who had been missing since March 24, was back home in Harrisburg today.

Gertrude Colston Nauman, member of a socially prominent family, landed at Harrisburg airport on a chartered plane at about 5:30 P. M., EST, yesterday after a flight from Miami Beach, Fla.

Her mother, Mrs. Spencer G. Nauman, said the 19-year-old girl was accompanied by her father and an uncle, Conway H. Olmstead, of Chicago.

Mrs. Nauman said her daughter seemed "very well" but that she must be kept quiet "under doctor's orders."

Gertrude was found in a state of "nervous exhaustion," she said, and doctors here and in Miami Beach had consulted over her condition.

Miss Nauman had vanished after leaving the Bryn Mawr campus to begin a 10-day holiday at home. The last trace of her for 10 was a discarded coat she had left in a Philadelphia railway station.

Brother and Sister To Meet For First Time in 52 Years

KANE, Pa., April 7—(AP)—A brother and sister who have not seen each other for 52 years will be reunited on Easter.

They are the Rev. Sherman H. Epler of the First Methodist church of Kane and Mrs. Florence Griffiths of Brestol, England, adopted by an English family when an infant.

Mrs. Griffiths arrived in New York aboard the Queen Mary this week.

The Epler family, originally from Shamokin, Pa., became separated when their mother died a few months after the birth of Mrs. Griffiths. The baby girl was taken to England by relatives. Three other children remained in this country. Their efforts to locate their sister proved futile for years because Mrs. Griffiths had never been told she was adopted.

Finally, through settlement of an estate, Mrs. Griffiths was located and began correspondence with her new family.

She has visited the United States 12 times—on a passport as a British citizen. This time she came as an American citizen—through birth records supplied by the Epler family.

Her two sisters, Mrs. Dorothy Raabe and Mrs. Anne Valler, live in Philadelphia. Mr. Epler said a family reunion is planned later.

Three Men Caught Fleeing from Holdup

CINCINNATI, April 7—(AP)—The treasurer of a Building and Loan Company was held up and robbed of $7,158.01 today, but three suspects were captured minutes later and the money recovered.

Herman E. F. Wiehe, 79, treasurer of the Oakley Building and Loan Company, told police two men accosted him as he left a bank with the money. One of them pulled his hat over his eyes, a gun was jammed in his side, and the money seized. The third man was in an automobile.

Patrolmen Louis Klotter and Charles Gellenbeck spotted the men in the car, and gave chase when they drove rapidly away.

The policemen captured them when they mired their car on a roadside.

The money was found in their possession, Klotter and Gellenbeck reported.

The men registered as Eugene Hershaw, 28; Clyde Rayford, 26, and John Abernathy, 25. They were not booked immediately.

Even Sub-Teen-agers Worrying about War

WASHINGTON, April 7—(AP)—Senator Magnuson (D-Wash.) said today that even the sub-teen-agers are worrying about war.

He displayed a letter from June Lellan Stoy, 12 year old sixth grader. Written from her home, Rural Route 1, Box 416, Kent, Wash., she said:

"For pity sakes let's not have any more wars. It sure is causing a lot of trouble."

Charges of Red Affiliations By Sen. McCarthy Blowing Up

WASHINGTON, April 7—(AP)—Senator Tydings' assertion that FBI records fully clear Owen Lattimore of "Communist spy" charges left Senator McCarthy completely dissatisfied today.

Tydings, Maryland Democrat, heads the Senate committee investigating the conventions of McCarthy, Wisconsin Republican, that Lattimore is Russia's top espionage agent in the United States.

Lattimore, an American authority on Far Eastern affairs, yesterday spent more than three hours in the witness chair blasting McCarthy's accusations. His sworn testimony boiled down to saying McCarthy had uttered "base and contemptible lies."

Wholesale Price Of Gas Boosted

Reaction of DP&L Here Is Uncertain

The Federal Power Commission has authorized the Ohio Fuel Gas Co., from which The Dayton Power and Light Co. obtains its supply of gas for Washington C. H. and many other points in central and western Ohio, to increase temporarily its wholesale rates to raise $726,331 annually.

The temporary increase will average 2.97 cents per 1,000 cubic feet to The Dayton Power and Light Co., and numerous other companies obtaining natural gas from the Ohio Fuel Gas Co.

Whether it will mean increased rates in Washington C. H. has not been determined by The Dayton Power and Light Co., and in fact the company has not been officially notified of the action. A. E. Weatherly, superintendent of the Washington C. H. District of The Dayton Power and Light Co. said Friday:

"The increased rates authorized by the Federal Power Commission retroactive to April 1, providing the company posts a $100,000 bond within 15 days. The company last fall asked a higher rate, but a decision by the commission is still forthcoming."

Should the commission decide later on that any part of the increase is unjustified, the company must make refunds with six percent interest.

'Lettuce' in Lettuce In Form of $1670 Cash

OKLAHOMA CITY, April 7—(AP)—Grocer Troy Joslin reached into his vegetable bin yesterday and pulled out plenty of "lettuce."

The "lettuce" was in the form of $1,670 cash in a pasteboard box.

Joslin called in Detective Mark Bain. He traced the box of cash to Mrs. J. P. Bradford, bookkeeper for a plastering firm. She said she must have lost the money while shopping for vegetables.

It was the firm's weekly payroll.

Jewel Thief Is Captured

SEATTLE, April 7—(AP)—Lester Emmett Bennett, wanted in Dallas, Tex., in connection with a $40,000 jewel robbery, was arrested by two Seattle detectives early today in the washroom of a downtown tavern. He offered no resistance and was not armed.

Det. H. J. Tipton of the robbery and homicide division said Bennett was arrested by Detectives Dale Schnieser and Steve Dinack.

Bennett was indicted in Dallas along with William Trent Jarrett in connection with the $40,000 jewelry robbery of the fashionable W. W. Shortall home Feb. 17.

Both Bennett and Jarrett are escapees from the Cincinnati, Ohio jail. Also indicted with them in the Shortall jewel robbery was Thomas J. Schwartz, Dallas pawnbroker.

The execution was carried out. (Please turn to Page Ten)

More Revenue Would Come in To State, Claim

Tax on Gross Sales Would Replace Present System

COLUMBUS, April 7—(AP)—Revision of Ohio's tax laws would provide the state with from $16,000,000 to $18,000,000 in additional funds annually, a state committee estimated yesterday.

The tax sources committee, in a preliminary report, recommended replacing Ohio's prepaid sales tax stamps with a tax on gross sales.

It also suggested to the state tax and revenue study commission that sales tax exemptions be reviewed.

It used 1949 sales tax collections as a base for estimating savings. The committee emphasized its report was only a preliminary one and that final recommendations would not come until other tax sources have been studied.

Tax Put in Price

If a gross sales tax were reported, purchasers still would pay a three percent tax, but the tax would be part of the purchase price. It would be collected directly from dealers who would add it to prices of items they sell.

Under the prepaid sales tax system, purchasers are given sales stamps when they pay the tax.

The committee said the state would save considerable amount of money now spent in printing and selling sales tax stamps, if a gross sales tax plan is adopted.

Last year the state paid out $3,050,000 to charitable, religious, and educational groups that redeemed cancelled sales tax stamps. By law those organizations are entitled to three percent of the face value of the stamps. The committee pointed out this state expenditure would be eliminated under a gross sales tax.

No Action on Report
No action was taken on the committee's report by the parent body.

If the gross sales tax is adopted, the committee suggested, consideration should be given to:

1. Lowering the present 40-cent exemption. (Sales of less than 49 cents are not taxable now.)
2. Abandoning exemption of casual sales of used automobiles. (Now, if the owner of a car sells it, he does not collect sales tax from the purchaser.)
3. Reviewing remaining exemptions in the present law.
4. Cutting the discount to vendors from three to two percent for prompt payment of the sales tax.
5. Increasing the tax commission's budget.
6. Imposing penalties for tardy tax reports.
7. Retaining the tax bracket system.
8. Keeping the present exemption on food sold for consumption off the premises.

Security Extension Running into Snags

WASHINGTON, April 7—(AP)—President Truman got a mixed and uncertain reception in Capitol Hill today for his new proposal to (1) blanket 6,000,000 more workers under employment insurance and (2) pay bigger benefits to the jobless for a longer time.

Mr. Truman cited an average of nearly 4,500,000 unemployed this year and said prompt action is urgent.

Democratic leaders were not enthusiastic at the prospect of putting the plan through Congress this year, however, and some Republicans signalled that they are ready to do battle against it.

The 6,000,000 new workers under the program, if it is approved, would bring the total of covered workers to about 36,000,000.

The newly insured would be employees of firms with fewer than eight workers, also civilian employees of the federal government, about 500,000 persons who work on a commission basis, and 200,000 in industrial work connected with agriculture all now exempt.

Fire Hazards Are Discussed

Half of Fires Start In Basements

A bulletin issued by the Ohio Fire safety Committee points out some of the fire hazards which may exist in a great many homes in this community, and suggests remedies.

The statement follows:
"Spring is generally dedicated to house cleaning. Let us not forget the elimination of fire hazards at this time is very important as it will prevent fires from occurring during the summer."

The grand old man of fire prevention, T. Alfred Fleming, stated recently that 57% of all home fires start in the basement. Going on that assumption, if you clean up your basement, you will eliminate over half of your fire hazards.

Harry J. Callan, state fire marshal, said today, "most home fires do not reach the headlines as do large conflagrations; however, they cost the nation four times as much property damage and four times as many lives" so it is certainly behooves all of us to clean up our homes, buildings and yards in the spring.

W. T. Holliday, chairman of the board of directors, Standard Oil Company (Ohio) and general chairman of the Ohio Fire Safety Committee, stated, "spring clean-up should certainly not stop with the basement, but should begin there and end in the attic. All accumulation of trash, paper and little used articles which we keep from year to year, should be removed and disposed of." Yards should be raked and houses and buildings repainted, roofs checked and repairs made where needed.

Fire chiefs and others interested should be urged to conduct a spring clean up campaign and assist in the disposal of rubbish.

Spring is the time to wake up so let's all wake up to the fire hazards existing in our homes and places of business and clean them up.

saw a summary of the FBI record on Lattimore—not the so-called "raw" file.

McCarthy retorted he does not know what Hoover gave the committee, "but I know what is in the files."

Tydings, commenting on McCarthy's remark about him, declared:

"I'll let my reputation for accuracy stand. It is significant that no member of the committee contradicted the statement when I made it in the presence of the committee."

The committee, actually a sub-committee of the Senate foreign relations committee, is made up of Tydings and senators Green (D-RI), McMahon (D-Conn), Lodge (R-Mass) and Hickenlooper (R-Iowa).

Hickenlooper is the one member who was not present when Tydings and the others went to the Justice Department two weeks ago.

When Tydings made his announcement at yesterday's session, Hickenlooper said he wanted to make it clear that he had not yet seen the summary on Lattimore.

Tydings broke in to say he will take Hickenlooper to the Justice Department next week to scrutinize the document. Hickenlooper had told reporters earlier that Attorney General McGrath had invited him to come in and have a look at his convenience.

Tydings said after the hearing the Hoover, McGrath and Peyton Ford, assistant to McGrath, all agree with the estimate of the four members of the committee that the FBI summary clears Lattimore of McCarthy's charges.

County Schools Close for Easter

Some 2,300 county school children were enjoying the first day of their Easter weekend vacation Friday.

The county schoolsters won't return to classes until Tuesday, but their companions in city schools will wind up a nine-day vacation, when they report back Monday.

What the county youngsters miss in vacation now, they will make up at the end of the year when they are dismissed one week before the city schools let out for the summer vacation.

the Man of Galilee who on this day 19 centuries ago died on a wooden cross on a hill outside Jerusalem.

There were special prayers on the lips of many today, and sermons from high prelates and from country preachers. There were ceremonies, and candle-lightings, processions and plays and heads bowed together.

Business houses in many cities ordered their doors closed, at least for the period of special devotion from noon to 3 P. M.—the hours of Christ's passion.

In Rome, thousands of holy year pilgrims knelt in reverence in St. Peter's Basilica, the world's largest church. In Jerusalem, other pilgrims filed through battle-scarred streets on their Good Friday march over the route Christ took to the crucifixion.

In the little town of Sezze, Italy, some 3,000 townspeople prepared to take part tonight in the first postwar production of their Good Friday passion play, a traditional ritual there for hundreds of years. Thousands will watch as the crucifixion scene is enacted on a hillside outside the town.

Special messages, many of them stressing the teachings of the Prince of Peace as a key to world tranquility, were issued at churches throughout America.

At Lawton, Okla., the trumpet's call and prayers for a peaceful world—under one god—will open the Wichita Mountains predawn Easter services Sunday at nearby Holy City.

More than 100,000 persons of all faiths are expected on the gently sloping hills to observe Easter in their fashion and view the annual pageant depicting the story of Christ.

A volunteer cast of 300 will present the four-hour religious program beginning at midnight with two hours of recorded spiritual music.

Mercy Killer Guilty

Judge Henninger did not sentence Mohr pending the appeal.

Mohr's 75-year-old father, his brother Ralph, former police chief at nearby Coplay, and another brother, Raymond, were among the 100 spectators in the court room. They showed no emotion.

District Attorney Kenneth H. Koch, in his summation yesterday, accused Mohr of stepping "into the shoes of God when he shot" his brother, Walter, 55, the night of March 8 at their home in Coplay.

He asked the jury to convict Mohr to "bring mercy killings to a halt."

Defendant's Explanation

The defendant had signed a statement saying he shot Walter to end his suffering after Walter repeatedly asked to be "put out of his misery."

"We've been fooling around with the Almighty," Koch told the jury. "That's what Harold Mohr did."

Creveling offered a defense of temporary insanity, stating that Harold cracked under Walter's plea for death and shot him as he lay moaning on his bed.

Koch said he is "completely satisfied" and added "this is a fine verdict."

Judge Henninger commended the jury for its "fine" service and said the court will give consideration to the recommendation for mercy.

• The Basic Fact of the Christian Faith

By ROY L. SMITH

It has long been the custom among Christian preachers to proclaim the Easter message as if it were no more than an assurance of personal immortality.

It is that, of course, as the scriptures, the teaching of the Christian Church, and the faith of Christians testify. But it is more even than proof of immortality. It is the basic fact of the entire system of faith which rests back upon the life and teachings of Jesus of Nazareth.

It Produced the Church

It was their faith in the fact of the resurrection which produced the church which the Christians organized. Had there been no resurrection, or had the first century Christians not believed there had been one, there would have been no church.

The story of the raising of Jesus from the dead was the central theme which the early Christians were preaching throughout the ancient world.

It Produced Christian Theology

The vast system of theology produced by the Christian church is altogether the product of the resurrection. Some explanation had to be found for this amazing personality who had appeared for the space of one brief lifetime among men, and then had gone out under such astounding circumstances.

The Greek world was a very practical and reasonable one, and the Greeks, scientific thinkers as they were, demanded an explanation for all mysteries. In trying to make out a case for Jesus of Nazareth, the resurrected leader of the new faith, the Christians had to offer a solution for the problem he posed. Their efforts produced the basic principles of our Christian theology.

It Produced the New Testament

It is a notable fact that whereas the matter of the miraculous birth is mentioned in only two books of the New Testament, the resurrection is at the very center of almost every one. True, two or three are primarily concerned with questions of church government and administration, but even they would never have come into existence except for the fact of the resurrection.

The Sunday School Lesson for April 9: "The Power of the Resurrection," I Corinthians 15; Luke 24:1-12.

It was to declare their faith in the resurrection, or to clear up the thinking of the churches on the question of the resurrection, that a considerable portion of the New Testament was written by the Christians.

Read your New Testament and measure the space given to the resurrection, and you will discover that it constitutes by far the greatest bulk of any subject mentioned in the Christian scriptures.

It Produced the Martyrs

It was the Christians' faith in the fact of the resurrection, and their confidence that they would share in its glorious triumph, that nerved the martyrs to defy the Roman Empire and go to their deaths with a shout upon their lips.

It was the vast reservoir of power that lay in the doctrine of the resurrection which became the seedbed of the church, so that it was able to come up out of catacombs and prison camps stronger than it ever was before.

The Meaning of the Resurrection

To the plain man—the humble Christian—the resurrection is an assurance that we are living in a world in which God has the last word. Goodness, not evil, is the stuff of which eternity is made.

When Pilate put Jesus of Nazareth to death he had gone his limit. Death is the worst thing that evil can do. Beyond death it is powerless. The resurrection means that death is only an incident to God, a minor event along the way which does not in any way impede his work or delay his triumph.

The resurrection means that no effort invested in righteousness and no sacrifice made in behalf of honor or truth, is ever wasted. The resurrection means that the man who is true and upright has an ally in time, and that reinforcements are waiting for him at the grave.

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON, April 7—(AP)—It's going to be interesting to see what President Truman does, if anything, to offset the battering his administration has received from the Republicans.

This is an important year for Mr. Truman. It's an election year, when the people will have to vote for all 435 members of the House and 36 of the 96 senators.

Although right now the Democrats have a majority in both Houses, Mr. Truman's program—at least the part of it which affects us at home—hasn't been doing well.

His plan for middle-income housing got knocked on the head. His hopes that Congress will continue federal rent control when the law ends next June look pretty dim.

His civil rights program is getting no place fast. His desire to wipe out the Taft-Hartley labor law looks hopeless.

So much for his program. Meanwhile, his administration has been bludgeoned by some of the Republicans, led by Senator McCarthy, Wisconsin Republican.

McCarthy charged the State Department was padded with communists or pre-communists, and he named some names.

Those accused by him, or some of them, have denied his charges and called him some unpretty names, including "liar." But McCarthy has conducted a kind of triple attack:

He attacked people, he attacked the State Department, and he attacked the wisdom and leadership of the secretary of state, Dean Acheson. He called Acheson a "pompous diplomat with a phony British accent."

And some of the top Republicans in the Senate—Taft of Ohio, Bridges of New Hampshire, Wherry of Nebraska—have joined in lambasting the State Department, particularly for the way it has handled policy toward China.

(Not all the Republicans go along with McCarthy. Some, like former Secretary of War Stimson, have denounced his performance, and former Senator John Foster Dulles wrote to Acheson that "public dissemination of rumors and suspicions encourages our enemies.")

Mr. Truman, vacationing in Florida, opened up at a news conference there with the statement: "The greatest asset that the Kremlin has is the partisan attempt in the Senate to sabotage the bipartisan foreign policy of the United States."

McCarthy demanded—and so did the Senate subcommittee investigating his charges—that Mr. Truman let the subcommittee see the secret and confidential files on the people named by McCarthy. The senator said the files would back up his charges.

Mr. Truman refused, as other presidents before him have refused, to let out secret files.

Mr. Truman has told his loyalty review board to check over once again some of the people named by McCarthy, and report back to him. It's possible Mr. Truman will have same statement on this report when he gets it.

Hunt for Kimmel All over Soon

Why He Got Car Tags
Here Still Mystery

The hunt for Robert C. Kimmel is over.

He was picked up in Springfield Thursday afternoon by an alert patrolman only a few hours after he had made a sudden exit from the London Prison Farm where he had been taken on a conducted tour of the institution when he posed as an officer from prison farm at Austin, Tex.

Washington C. H. police spent a lot of time searching their records here for some reference to him at the request of prison farm authorities—but all to no avail.

The hunt for Kimmel here was started when the state Bureau of Motor Vehicles said the license tags on the station wagon he drove to the prison farm had been issued to him in Washington C. H. The registration, however, gave his home address as Dayton.

Kimmel took his hurried departure from the prison farm when he was asked to give officers there some identification.

No satisfactory explanation for his voluntary visit to the prison farm has been found yet. He had been an involuntary inmate at the farm in 1935 and 1937 during two penitentiary sentences on check charges. He also had been a patient at the Lima State Hospital for the mentally ill.

After digging through the old police records here, police finally came to the conclusion that Kimmel's only connection with Washington C. H. was when he got his car tags here.

It was these license tags that eventually landed Kimmel at Springfield police headquarters Thursday afternoon. Patrolman William Fogarty spotted the car on a downtown street after the license number had been broadcast by the State Highway Patrol which got into the hunt after the prison farm episode.

Police at Springfield said Kimmel gave them his name without hesitancy when he was picked up. Then, they added, they also questioned him about the issuance of bogus checks in Dayton.

Winegardner Slated For Class Addresses

Attorney Reed M. Winegardner has a series of commencement addresses booked for this spring, including one at Cannan Township High School in Madison County, May 17, and one at Bell-point in Delaware County, May 19.

The topic on which he will speak will be the "The March of Time."

During the past few years Winegardner has delivered a number of commencement addresses in various parts of Ohio.

Emerson Marting To Speak on Radio

Emerson Marting is going to tell the farmers of the vast WLW radio listening area about the pasture fertilization program he has been following in raising beef cattle.

The young Fayette County livestock farmer is to take part in a discussion on the "Farm and Home Hour" conducted by Roy Battles, WLW farm program director, Saturday.

The broadcast is to be made from the rural studio near Cincinnati known as "Everybody's Farm." Marting said he was not certain of the exact time he would be interviewed, but added he thought it would be "around 12:30 P. M."

Marting explained that his cattle pasturing program in general called for heavier fertilization of --mostly blue grass and clover--with less for the row crops such as corn, soybeans and other small grains.

He said the program was proving successful.

Woman Shot to Death

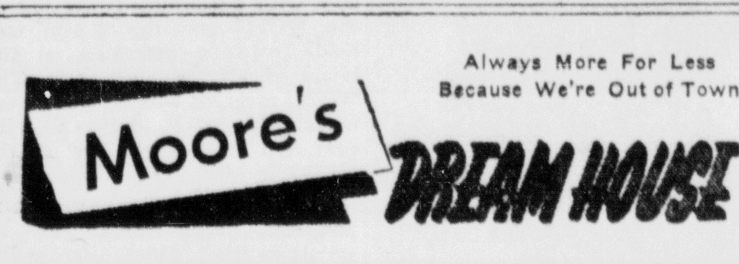

CINCINNATI, April 7—(AP)—Miss Margaret Jordan, 25, was shot to death today as she stood on a fire escape pleading for her life, according to night Police Chief George Peary.

Morrell Eakins, 33, recently released from the workhouse, where he was sent for assault and battery on the woman, was arrested a short time later.

Peary said Eakins will be charged with murder.

Thuma Lead Cut By Kute Kiddies

The lead of the Thumas in the Merchants League was cut to a single game in Thursday night's bowling at Bowland when the second place Kute Kiddies whitewashed them in a crucial match. Ralph Douglas, with 574, was the big gun for the victors.

By winning two games from the Dairymen, the Producers held third place by a comfortable margin over the Pepsi Colas who won two from the Ohio Bell boys.

In a family battle Pennington's Blue Bakers made a clean sweep of their match with the Red Bakers to break their tie for fifth place. The victory left the Blue teams tied with the Pepsi Colas in fourth place, however.

Buck Tackle Is Signed By Philadelphia Eagles

PHILADELPHIA, April 7 (AP)—The champion Philadelphia Eagles of the National Football League have signed two tackles from 1949 draft list.

Vince McNalley, general manager, said yesterday Lloyd McDermott, 230-pound University of Kentucky star, and Richard O'Hanlon, member of Ohio State's Rose Bowl team, will be on hand when the Eagles open training late in July.

Lions Press Practice For Opener Tuesday

Friday afternoon the WHS Lion baseball squad trotted out to the muddy Wilson Field to hold their third outdoor practice of the season.

After being penned up in the school gym because of the rainy weather, the outdoor session was welcomed heartily by the Lions. With only three days left until their first game, the boys are

Servicemen's Lead Now More Secure

Warner's Servicemen today could breathe a little easier. Their lead in the Industrial League was a little more secure after they won two games from the Moore outfit while the second place Henry Coleman were being blanked by the Wise Clothiers in Thursday night's bowling at Bowland.

Consistency was the big factor for both victors.

The Med-O-Pure Dairymen took two games from the Barger Brothers and the Greenfield Merchants did the same thing to the Jeffersonville outfit in the second division matches.

plenty short on practice. Under the watchful eye of assistant coach, Ron Guinn, the candidates for the squad shagged flies and threw the ball around to loosen up. Then Quinn had them take a crack at bunting and cutting loose on a few pitches.

Because of the soggy condition of the lot, however, they had to forego any infield practice and base running was high-into impossible.

Quinn said that he would like to have the boys play an intrasquad game before the opener, but unless it can be squeezed in Monday, the first "play ball" won't be until Tuesday's game at Greenfield.

On Monday, Coach Fred Pierson will have the task of selecting a set of outfielders and infielders for the game. Fortunately, he has a staff of three letterman pitchers to choose his battery from.

Slugging Needed Most by Indians

SHREVEPORT, La., April 7 (AP)—Cleveland's Indians needed an extra base hit in the worst sort of way today.

For 30 innings now, the mighty tribesmen haven't been able to pound out anything better than a measly single. They got nine yesterday in losing to the New York Giants, 5-1, and they got four on Wednesday when the Giants beat them 8-2.

On Tuesday, it was the same story, nine hits and all singles, but the Indians won that game, 7-6.

Sheldon Jones, Giants right hander who won 15 games last year, pitched the full nine innings against the Indians in Dallas, Tex.

Red Boss Happy About Pitchers

Best in League
Sewell Believes

RALEIGH, N. C., April 7 (AP)—Cincinnati Reds manager Luke Sewell is holding onto his trump card and grinning. He thinks the club's pitching staff will rate with the best in the National League.

And one hurler he never tires talking about is Kent Peterson. Luke says the young, slight Utah native is the most improved pitcher on the roster.

Asked if this meant Pete's early inclusion in the regular starting schedule, Sewell replied, "yes—and what's more, he's going to start the third or fourth game of season for us. Whether he can hold that spot over Harry Perkowski remains to be seen."

Peterson, a 24-year-old southpaw, was the chief reason he ok'd sale of Johnny Vander Meer to the Chicago Cubs, Sewell claimed, plaining, "I knew that if we kept Vandy on our roster I would have to pitch him."

Vander Meer is the type of pitcher who has to take his regular turn to be effective. What's more, he's not the sort who could pitch relief ball.

Bonus Pitcher Settles Down After Start

NEW ORLEANS, April 7 (AP)—The exhibition baseball chatter today was mostly about pitching performances, including one by the $100,000 bonus baby, Paul Pettit, which could be called both good and bad.

Pettit is the 16-year-old California lad recently acquired by the Pittsburgh Pirates in a deal that caused considerable commotion and excitement. Paul was shipped to the Pirates' farm club, New Orleans. Just a few days ago he hurled five hitless innings against minor league opposition. Yesterday he was sent in to pitch against major leaguers—the boss Pirates.

Perhaps young Paul had a case of stage fright. At any rate, before the first inning was over, he had given six runs. Three straight walks filled the bases. Pettit then allowed three singles, a double, a wild pitch and a balk, with a double steal sandwiched in.

But Paul stayed in there for three more innings and, indicating he may prove his mettle, blanked the major leaguers over that stretch Pittsburgh won the game played in the Crescent City, 10-7.

The Gentle Heart by KAY HAMILTON

CHAPTER FIFTEEN

"WELL! That's good news. But you say she's going to go on with the modeling." Elsa was thoughtful as she pondered on the news of Diane's return to her husband. "She's a natural for it, of course, but still it won't do her marriage any good. There are some women who can swing that sort of thing, but they are women who have a strong domestic streak as well as a good looks, a photogenic quality, and the ability to work at a strenuous job like modeling. But Diane—I don't know." She said suddenly, "Does this mean she'll go on seeing so much of Jack Tyson?"

It was putting into words the worry which had nagged at Jenny all afternoon, and she said slowly, "I—I suppose so. After all—"

After all, he's not going to let a beauty like Di out of his clutches without an effort to keep her," Elsa supplied. "Well, perhaps it will work out, but I don't know. Those parties he has can get pretty wild sometimes."

"But—but Fred will be along now," Jenny stammered.

"I wonder," Elsa did not say more, but she left Jenny feeling distressed. Surely, now Fred would make every effort to accompany Diane in the evenings. And Di wouldn't want to go places without him. But she felt very much as if Di's marriage were a fragile glass globe, poised atop a high wall. The first strong wind of mischance could send it hurtling to destruction. Elsa leaned back, clasped her hands behind her head. "I came over for a reason, Jenny. Don't you want to know what it is?"

Jenny roused. "Of course I do."

"Well, prepare for a shock. Pete's son is coming to live with us."

Jenny was surprised. "Pete's son?" she echoed. "Why, I didn't know he had one."

"Not many people do," Elsa confessed. "Not many people know that he was married before." She bent forward suddenly, her elbows on her knees, and stared at the carpet. "He married when he was still in college—some snip of a girl—and the honeymoon wasn't over before he knew what a fool he'd been. I don't think they lived together more than a couple of months. But it was long enough to produce Dick. She treated Pete horribly. Went off to get the divorce without letting him know he was going to be a father. Of course, she got the custody. The awful part is that she's hated having the child all these years."

Jenny shook her head as if to clear it. "Gee, I guess, we had no idea," she began, but Elsa was in full spate.

"Pete has supported the boy, naturally, and she has 'allowed' him to see the child once in a while. They're perfect strangers to each other, as you can imagine. Now, out of the blue, when Dick is fourteen, she has snared another unsuspecting male, and is going to get married again. And she doesn't want Dick cluttering up the new marriage, so she has magnanimously decided that Pete can have him. In fact, she has practically dumped the boy in his lap!"

"But what will you do?" Jenny wanted to know. "Do you have room?" The Torres bungalow had four rooms with attached garage. There was a large living room, a kitchen, two bedrooms and a bath. "Where will you put him?" For Jenny was remembering that Elsa used the extra bedroom for her sewing and designing.

Elsa said, with a rather grim smile, "I'm giving him my work room, and Pete is going to have the attic finished so that I can work up there."

"But you'll stifle in summer! Can't you build on?"

Elsa shook her head. "Have you any idea what it costs to build today? The lowest estimate we had for one small room was two thousand dollars. And we haven't got it, Jenny."

Jenny's brain frantically explored other possibilities. "How about renting a place for your work? Have you thought of that?"

"I think we've thought of everything possible," Elsa said, with the quietness of despair. "But in the first place, there isn't anything for rent in Green Ridge, and in the second place, we couldn't afford that, either. Not for long, at any rate."

"But where will you put him while you're making the alterations?"

"I would have managed under ordinary circumstances. I would have put a cot for him in my work room, until the attic was finished. But even the simplest sort of job on the attic is going to cost so much that I shall have to work twice as hard for a while. You know how small that room is, Jenny. If I double my work, there won't even be room for his cot. And I think it would be horrid to expect the poor kid to sleep in the middle of a lot of feminine furberies, to watch his step every minute for fear he'd tear something, or step on something. I'm not too neat, you know, and I do leave things lying around," she added parenthetically. "And besides, he should have his own things around him. No, I can think of only one solution." She glanced up hopefully at Jenny, and said, with significance, "It just came to me when you said Di had gone back to Fred."

Jenny was taken aback. "You don't mean we should take him?" she cried.

Elsa nodded. "It wouldn't be for long, Jenny. Really it wouldn't. We'd rush the work like everything, so as to take him off your hands as soon as possible. But he's coming in less than a week, and we've got to find a place for him!"

Jenny said, "I'd have to talk this over with Natalie. And I'd have no idea what to charge."

"Oh, but you would," Elsa said triumphantly. She sensed that her battle was won, and could hardly keep the elation out of her voice. "You do keep accounts. You do have some idea what you spend for food, for instance. Well, add on some extra—he may be a big eater for all I know. Pete of that age often are. And then a charge for the rent of his room. I'll attend to his laundry and all that. Oh, Jenny, please say yes!"

But Jenny only reiterated, "I couldn't without Natalie's consent. It's her house as well as mine."

And Elsa said stubbornly, "If you feel that she's entitled to Brent's rent, I don't see why you wouldn't be entitled to Dick's. You'd be the one to do the work."

Elsa did not leave, although the talk switched to other subjects. She had made up her mind that this was the place for Dick Torres, and she was determined to stay until Natalie came out of the studio at the end of her day's work, so that she could put her proposition to the other sister squarely.

Jenny told her about the projected visit of Mrs. Owen, Faith's mother-in-law, and warned her that they were not to let the news of Faith's engagement to Max come to the older woman's ears until they were given the word. "Of course not," Elsa agreed. "I'll be as mum as a mussel."

Brent stopped work at four-thirty. He came into the living room, stretching his cramped muscles and looking pleased with himself. "Jenny's been telling me the wonderful news," Elsa said. "Congrats, big boy!"

"Thanks. I got going on the next painting right away, of course. Nothing like a sale to speed the laggard brush."

"Not to mention the stumbling brain," Elsa laughed. "Many's the time I've decided that there can't be anything new in fashion, not even a new way of rearranging all the old stuff. And then I make a sale, and presto, the grey matter begins to spin in dizzy delight and comes up with something new every time! Where's Natalie?"

"Working. You'll have to drag her away for dinner tonight, Jenny. She has an idea!"

"A good one?" Jenny asked eagerly. Was Nat's stale period over at last?

"Swell, the last I saw of it. She got it going over some of my Maine sketches—a very snazzy arrangement of fishnets, lobster buoys and wonderful seaweed forms. It will make one of those very fine, etched-looking prints for silk."

"Mmm, sounds good," Elsa commented, the designer in her coming to the fore. But she got to her feet. "I don't suppose there's any use my staying, then," she said. "Plead my case for me, will you, Jenny? This is really important to Pete and me."

CHAPTER FIFTEEN

"WELL! That's good news. But you say she's going to go on with the modeling." Elsa was thoughtful as she pondered on the news of Diane's return to her husband. "She's a natural for it, of course, but still it won't do her marriage any good. There are some women who can swing that sort of thing, but they are women who have a strong domestic streak as well as good looks, a photogenic quality, and the ability to work at a strenuous job like modeling. But Di—I don't know." She said suddenly, "Does this mean she'll go on seeing so much of Jack Tyson?"

It was putting into words the worry which had nagged at Jenny all afternoon, and she said slowly, "I—I suppose so. After all—"

"After all, he's not going to let a beauty like Di out of his clutches without an effort to keep her," Elsa supplied. "Well, perhaps it will work out, but I don't know. Those parties he has can get pretty wild sometimes."

"But—but Fred will be along now," Jenny stammered. "I wonder" Elsa did not say more, but she left Jenny feeling distressed. Surely, now Fred would make every effort to accompany Diane in the evenings. And Di wouldn't want to go places without him. But she felt very much as if Di's marriage were a fragile glass globe, poised atop a high wall. The first strong wind of mischance could send it hurtling to destruction. Elsa leaned back, clasped her hands behind her head. "I came over for a reason, Jenny. Don't you want to know what it is?"

Jenny roused. "Of course I do." "Well, prepare for a shock. Pete's son is coming to live with us."

Jenny was surprised. "Pete's son?" she echoed. "Why, I didn't know he had one."

"Not many people do," Elsa confessed. "Not many people know that he was married before." She bent forward suddenly, her elbows on her knees, and stared at the carpet. "He married when he was still in college—some snip of a girl—and the honeymoon wasn't over before he knew what a fool he'd been. I don't think they lived together more than a couple of months. But it was long enough to produce Dick. She treated Pete horribly. Went off to get the divorce without letting him know he was going to be a father. Of course, she got the custody. The awful part is that she's hated having the child all these years."

Jenny shook her head as if to clear it. "Gee, we had no idea," she began, but Elsa was in full spate.

"Pete has supported the boy, naturally, and she has allowed him to see the child once in a while. They're perfect strangers to each other, as you can imagine. Now, out of the blue, when Dick is fourteen, she has snared another unsuspecting male, and is going to get married again. And she doesn't want Dick cluttering up the new marriage, so she has magnanimously decided that Pete can have him. In fact, she has practically dumped the boy in his lap!"

"But what will you do?" Jenny wanted to know. "Do you have room?" The Torres bungalow had four rooms with attached garage. There was a large living room, a kitchen, two bedrooms and a bath. "Where will you put him?" For Jenny was remembering that Elsa used the extra bedroom for her sewing and designing.

Elsa said, with a rather grim smile, "I'm giving him my work room, and Pete is going to have the attic finished so that I can work up there."

"But you'll stifle in summer! Can't you build on?"

Elsa shook her head. "Have you any idea what it costs to build today? The lowest estimate we had for one small room was two thousand dollars. And we haven't got it, Jenny."

Jenny's brain frantically explored other possibilities. "How about renting a place for your work? Have you thought of that?"

"I think we've thought of everything possible," Elsa said, with the quietness of despair. "But in the first place, there isn't anything for rent in Green Ridge, and in the second place, we couldn't afford that, either. Not for long, at any rate."

"But where will you put him while you're making the alterations?"

"I would have managed under ordinary circumstances. I would have put a cot for him in my workroom, until the attic was finished. But even the simplest sort of job on the attic is going to cost so much that I shall have to work twice as hard for a while. You know how small that room is. Jenny. If I double my work, there won't even be room for his cot. And I think it would be horrid to expect the poor kid to sleep in the middle of a lot of feminine fur-bells, to watch his step every minute for fear he'd tear something, or step on something. I'm not too neat, you know, and I do leave things lying around," she added parenthetically. "And besides, he should have his own things around him. No, I can think of only one solution." She glanced up hopefully at Jenny, and said, with significance, "It just came to me when you said Di had gone back to Fred."

Jenny was taken aback. "You don't mean we should take him?" she cried.

Elsa nodded. "It wouldn't be for long, Jenny. Really it wouldn't. We'd rush the work like everything, so as to take him off your hands as soon as possible. But he's coming in less than a week, and we've got to find a place for him!"

Jenny said, "I'd have to talk this over with Natalie. And I'd have no idea what to charge." "Oh, but you would," Elsa said triumphantly. She sensed that her battle was won, and could hardly keep the elation out of her voice. "You do keep accounts. You do have some idea what you spend for food, for instance. Well, add on some extra—he may be a big eater for all I know. Pay of that eater often are. And then a charge for the rent of his room. I'd attend to his laundry and all that. Oh, Jenny, please say yes!"

But Jenny only reiterated, "I couldn't without Natalie's consent. It's her house as well as mine."

And Elsa said stubbornly, "If you feel that she's entitled to Brent's rent, I don't see why you wouldn't be entitled to Dick's. You'd be the one to do the work."

Elsa did not leave, although the talk switched to other subjects. She had made up her mind that this was the place for Dick Torres, and she was determined to stay until Natalie came out of the studio at the end of her day's work, so that she could put her proposition to the other sister squarely.

Jenny told her about the projected visit of Mrs. Owen, Faith's mother-in-law, and warned her that they were not to let the news of Faith's engagement to Max come to the older woman's ears until they were given the word. "Of course not," Elsa agreed. "I'll be as mum as a mussel."

Brent stopped work at four-thirty. He came into the living room, stretching his cramped muscles and looking pleased with himself. "Jenny's been telling me the wonderful news," Elsa said. "Congrats, big boy!"

"Thanks. I got going on the next painting right away, of course. Nothing like a sale to speed the laggard brush."

"Not to mention the stumbling brain," Elsa laughed. "Many's the time I've decided that there can't be anything new in fashion, not even a new way of rearranging all the old stuff. And then I make a slip, and presto, the grey matter begins to spin in dizzy delight and comes up with something new every minute! Where's Natalie?"

"Working. You'll have to drag her away for dinner tonight, Jenny. She has an idea!"

"A good one?" Jenny asked eagerly. Was Nat's stale period over at last?

"Well, the last I saw of it. She got it going over some of my Maine sketches—a very snazzy arrangement of fishnets, lobster forms. It will make one of those very fine, etched-looking prints for silk."

"Mmm, sounds good," Elsa commented, the designer in her coming to the fore. But she got to her feet. "I don't suppose there's any use my staying, then," she said. "Plead my case for me, will you, Jenny? This is really important to Pete and me."

Truck Brings Fire
Right to Firemen

MEADVILLE, Pa., April 7—(AP)—
The telephone rang last night in the volunteer fire department headquarters at nearby West Mead Township.
"Get out in the road quick,"
said an excited feminine voice.
"There's a fire coming your way."
The firemen followed instructions and sure enough in few minutes a blazing truck roaring down the highway.
The firemen stopped the truck—owned by the Burdette Oxygen
Co. of Cleveland—and extinguished a fire in the truck brakes.
The driver had been unaware of the fire.

Hospital Board Studies Details

Plans for Opening In May Discussed

Matters pertaining to finishing work on the Fayette County Memorial Hospital, and final items of equipment yet to be secured, were thoroughly reviewed by members of the construction and equipment board at a meeting held at the hospital Thursday evening.

All members, President Ralph Nisley, Secretary George Pensyl, H. W. Burnett and Colin Campbell, together with O. D. Farquhar, clerk, were present. The architect, Curtis Insko, of Columbus, was also in attendance.

There was discussion as to how to proceed to get all work yet to be done, completed in time for the tentative official opening dates, May 4 to 7 inclusive. It was agreed that everything possible would be done to avoid delays which would cause any postponement of the dates set for "open house" inspections and the dedicatory ceremonies.

There has been some delay in shipments of certain parts of the equipment which were ordered delivered some time ago, but Architect Insko advised the board that he had promises from the dealers that these items would be here within another week.

There was also discussion of the landscaping project on the hospital grounds, but no definite action was taken pending receiving some further information being sought.

Another meeting of the construction and equipment board will be held next Monday evening at the hospital to go over all details again and to take any further steps needed to get the hospital in readiness by the first of May.

Five Men Fined For Looting Car

Five men of the East Monroe and Leesburg communities were fined $50 and costs and given 20 days in the Highland County jail for stripping a wrecked automobile while the owner, Jesse Hill, 22, formerly of Greenfield, was in a Cincinnati Hospital in a critical condition as result of injuries sustained when his car was wrecked.

The five men were rounded up by Police Chief Ervin Hiser, of Leesburg, and they were taken before Justice Dave Boothby, in Hillsboro, and the fines administered.

They are Charles VanMeter, 19, Edward Ames, 21, Alfred Martin, 30, Thomas Coonrod, 24, and Billy Haines, 26. Part of the stolen accessories were found in possession of some of the men.

The justice of the peace suspended part of the fines and also part of the jail sentences.

Push Cart License Go on Sale Monday

New push cart licenses go on sale Monday at the office of City Auditor, Miss Marie Melvin. Every push cart owner in the city must obtain one of the new licenses without delay.

The plates are metal and they must be displayed on each push cart. They cost $1 each.

Licensing of push carts started several years ago as one way to break up the dumping of loads of rubbish in alleys and at other points besides the city dump.

If a push cart owner is found guilty of dumping rubbish within the city, he is deprived of his license.

There are approximately 80 push carts in operation in the city, although 100 license plates have been ordered and will go on sale Monday.

Kansas City Killing

by local men, close friends of the fallen leader, on orders which originated in another city," the Star said.

"Binaggio, both a political and as a racket boss, had made wide-scale promises to open Missouri to gambling. He had accepted money from the national syndicate for use in the 1948 elections.

"When the federal grand jury began work last September, with Binaggio obviously among their top targets, he was in the position of a man who had promised a lot, had obtained money on his promises, but had delivered only crumbs."

Political Implications

Binaggio began his strong bid for political power in 1944. He backed the late Mayor Roger T. Sermon of Independence for governor. Sermon, a close friend of President Truman, failed in his gubernatorial bid.

In his statement issued in Washington, Representative Short said he had been informed that Tom Hennings, a candidate for the Missouri Democratic Senatorial nomination, has the backing of the Binaggio faction in Kansas City.

He declared that President Truman and remnants of the political organization built by the late Tom Pendergast oppose Hennings. "Mr. Binaggio was in the way," Short said. "So what happened? He is bumped off."

The congressman said President Truman's candidate is Emery Allison, a state Senator from Rolla, Mo. He added that "I never heard of his name until Harry endorsed him. Mr. Allison, no doubt, is a fine man. But you know how even thieves will fall out."

Hennings, of St. Louis, said last night:

"If the Binaggio faction planned to back me I never knew about it. I actually do not know who the faction planned to back."

About 100 Persons At Band Concert

An estimated 100 persons were in attendance at the opening spring concert of the Fayette County School Band, held Thursday night in the Madison Mills school auditorium.

Milford Barker, superintendent, stated that the attendance was down probably because of the swirl of pre-Easter activities.

He said the program was warmly received and enthusiastically applauded. The program featured everything from marches to familiar tunes. The 70-member county school band was under the direction of Rolland Chase.

The next band concert will be held April 11 at the Good Hope gym.

Maximum Attendance Expected at Clinic

As the date for Fayette County's second heart clinic draws near, the Health Department reports that registration for it is rapidly approaching the maximum that can be handled.

Gretchen Darlington, head nurse said that the department is expecting the clinic Thursday to examine from 23 to 25 referrals from private physicians around the county.

Apparently doctors and patients are going to make as much use of the clinic this time as they did last fall when Dr. Robert Lyon brought up his special staff from Cincinnati.

Dr. Lyons and his staff will be on hand again Thursday to give each person a thorough heart examination. Individual reports on these examinations will then be prepared and sent to the private physicians.

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.
